HISTORY OF THE WALLACE FAMILY

The whole world thinks of Scotland when it hears the name of Wallace, since those two names were inter-mingled in the making of Early Scottish history--- a history that has, since the eleventh century, been read by all people of all civilized nations of the earth.

As we read of our ancestors down through the centuries to the present day, we find that the outstanding attribute which has characterized them as a family, is that of loyalty---loyalty and devotion to those who are theirs, because of the ties of common interest, or because of the ties of blood.

Before we delve into the personal history of those ancient ones let us consider for a moment some of the advantages and customs of the day.

1. Manner of dress
2. Educational advantages
3. Their religion
4. Their standing as citizens

Manner of dress

History tells us that those "long-ago" folks were what were called "Scottish Highlanders" and that until the time they took up their residence in America, they wore that strange and interesting dress called kilts or kilties. This form of dress has been worn by the people of Scotland for many, many centuries.

Up until one hundred years or so ago, the kilt was somewhat different from that which is worn today. It was more of a large blanket of woolen cloth, cross-barred in colors,--hence the name "Scottish plaid".

This olden time blanket was large and was wrapped around and around the body and then fastened to the left shoulder with a large brooch. It was then belted and buckled tightly around the waist and was worn quite long.

The more modern kilt, of course, is a short loose skirt, reaching from the waist to the knees and is worn with other garments.

Educational Advantages

Next, let us consider for a moment the educational advantages of those early relatives of ours.

Before the 17th century, the children of Scotland attended parish schools of the various religious denominations up until the high-school age. As far back as the 9th century, there were public high-schools, but the first college was established in 1411. This was three hundred years, however, before our ancestors began their migration to America.

Then, we learn too, that within one hundred years after the establishment of the first university, these higher schools of learning were in every large city and many of the smaller ones.

Thus during the last two hundred years of their residence in Scotland, there were grade, high schools and colleges all over the country.

As we take up the history of the lives of those interesting relatives, we find that they were people of wealth and standing, so it is presumed that they had the Educational advantages of their time.

Their Religion

Beginning with the 8th century, the National Church of Scotland was called the Culdee Church. The name "Culdee" was taken from the celtic word meaning "attendant of God".

Their church was independent from the church of Great Britain, although during the stormy years of the British rule certain classes were compelled to adopt the church of that country, but the leaders of Scotland never did.

On August 25, 1560, the National Church of Scotland became the Presbyterian Church and has so remained, but archaelogists delving into the history of the church of those ancient times have discovered no essential point either of faith, ritual, or constitution which differed materially from the National Church of today. Therefore, we may be very safe in supposing that from the 9th century, the home church of the Wallace family has been, in reality, the Presbyterian Church.

So, therefore as we know something of their manner of dress, their education, their religion, and their standing in the communities in which they lived, we shall feel more of a personal interest in these people whose descendants we are.

WALLACE HISTORY

The first Wallace of whom there is any record was Richard of Riccarton, Scotland, who was born in 1143 and died in 1204--at the age of sixty-one years. We first hear of him officially when he signed his name to a charter in 1165--thusly--Richard Wallense. (W-a-l-l-e-n-s-e). He seems to have had a great deal of possessions around Riccarton and also did he obtain from the High Stewart of Scotland, a part of the district west of Ayr. At that time, in order that a man might have business transactions directly with the High Stewart, he must be a man of affairs, either in a political way, or he had distinguished himself because of loyalty to a righteous cause.

In 1175 Richard's name again appears in the records when he signed deeds, charters, wills, etc., and in each case he signed his name "Richard Wallense".

From his will made in 1192, we learn that his Wife's name was Janet and that he had two sons--Philip and Richard II. Philip was born in 1170. Nothing is given of his family--hence it is supposed that he had none. Richard II was born in 1172 and in 1196 married Margaret Buckingham. When he signed the marriage permit, as they were called, he changed the spelling of the name from Walense to Walays. (W-a-l-a-y-s).

Richard and Margaret had two sons, Adam and Richard III. The youngest son, Richard died when but a small boy. Adam, the eldest son was born in 1197 and in 1218, married Christine Kilbane. Their two sons were Malcolm and Adam. Adam, the younger brother was born in 1223 and in 1244 married the heiress of Craigie and inherited vast estates in that part of Scotland. No further authentic records can be found of him.

Malcolm, the older brother was born in 1220 and in 1252 married Jean Crawford, daughter of Sir Reginald Crawford, High Sheriff of Ayr.

When but a young man he was made a Baron, a title of nobility given to those, only, who had acquired possessions, sometimes by purchase, sometimes by inheritance, and sometimes because of valuable services rendered. Upon receiving the title of Baron, a man automatically became a member of the House of Parliament, and, of course, had part in making of the laws.

Malcolm received from his father, Adam, vast estates in and around Ayr and Elderlie, because it was the custom in those days that a faithful elder son should become his father's successor. It is said that the estates of Elderlie are in possession of the Wallace descendants to this day--(later in the history of the family, we learn that the estates at Ayr were sold in 1720) or nearly five centuries later, and also do we find that about that year, our ancestors started their migration to America and elsewhere.

Malcolm, later, was given the title of Knighthood because he so fearlessly championed the cause of Scottish Independence. It will be remembered at the time that the people of Scotland under control of England and were in dire distress because of English Oppression.

Immediately upon receiving the Honor of Knighthood, he changed the spelling of the name from Walays to Wallace. (W-a-l-l-la-c-e) His family was the first to have the name that has come down through the centuries to the present days.

Malcolm and Jean Crawford-Wallace had three sons; Andrew, born in 1254, William born in 1276, and John born in 1277. In noting the difference in the ages of the two older brothers (that of 22 years) history suggests that perhaps daughters were born to their parents, but as was the customs, not recorded.

By Malcolm and his three sons was Wallace history in Scotland made. It seems necessary to review this bit of history here before we can understand clearly the rest of the Wallace history.

Andrew, the eldest son, became his father's body-guard. William became "Sir William", the Heroic Defender of Scottish Independence, as he was lovingly called by the people of Scotland, and the younger brother John, besides being a fighter, was destined to become our ancestor.

HISTORY OF SIR WILLIAM WALLACE
AND HIS FATHER MALCOLM AND BROTHERS--ANDREW AND JOHN

In 1291, Edward I, who was then King of England, ordered the Barons to swear allegiance to him.

Sir Malcolm absolutely refused to do so. He had already sworn allegiance to the people of Scotland and they looked to him for their liberation from the yoke of England. He realized that in refusing to do as the King requested, it would mean the giving up of his part in the affairs of the government and in all probability would mean serious harm to him and his family, but to the Early martyrs, loyalty to one's country, meant more than life itself.

His fears were not ungrounded because an edict went out from the King that the opposing Barons and their families were to be hunted and put to death. Sir Malcolm and his eldest son Andrew took refuge in Lennox, Scotland. Jean Crawford-Wallace, and the younger sons, William, who later became Sir William, and John, sought protection of a powerful and wealthy relative of Kilspindie, Scotland. (In the foot notes we're reminded that in those days it was harder for the Higher Powers of a nation to capture and punish their opposition than it would be today under similar circumstances so that after things had quieted down in England, the Wallaces again took up the fight for the homeland.)

The son, William, who but a boy of fifteen years of age at the time the Edict went out, displayed a heroism which has been unparalleled in all the history of Scotland. In return, the people devotedly called him "The Heroic Defender of Scottish Independence" a title which certainly was truthfully used.

At the age of twenty years, he married Miss Cornellia Bradfute, who was spoken of as the heiress of Bradfute. Her vast estate bore her family name. They had one child, Elizabeth, who was born in 1295. She married Sir William Baille, a Scotch nobleman. Not much is said of her after her marriage. During these few years after the edict was issued by the King, Sir William and his father, and brothers continued their activities much to the annoyance of the British Officials.

Finally, Governor Hazelrig, the English Governor at Dundee, murdered Cornellia Bradfute-Wallace, wife of Sir William. To avenge the murder of his wife, he slew several of the governor's attendants and also the sheriff of Dundee. When he was pursued, he fled to the woods and was outlawed. Gathering together a great number of followers, he drove the English out a great section of Scotland and in 1297 defeated the English at the battle of Stirling. It is on this site that the Wallace monument was so lovingly erected by the people of his native land. Those of our families who have visited Scotland report that this monument is one of the most wonderful pieces of masonry in that part of the country.

The battle of Stirling liberated his country for a while. He was appointed one of the Commanders-in-chief of the Scottish armies and penetrated into England with fire and sword.

King Edward of England was down in Flanders, France when he heard of the activities of the Scotch and hurried home in order to march his armies against Sir William whom he finally defeated. Sir William, however, carried on guerilla warfare against England for several years but was finally betrayed, captured and executed in London, on August 23, 1305, at the age of thirty-one years. On the same day of his execution, his father, Sir Malcolm and his brother Andrew, met the same fate. It is presumed that they were all together when captured and executed. Andrew left no family and Sir William left the Daughter, Elizabeth Wallace-Baillie.

John, the youngest brother, was executed two years later in 1307, leaving his wife, who was Mary Almour, and a small son John II.

Over a span of seventy years or so, history gives no account of this remnant of the Wallace family, but historians in search of some traces of them reported the finding of John II, at the end of seventy years, now grown old, living in the castle at Craigie. It is remembered that he was born in 1307, the year of his father's execution. History tells us that in 1327 he married his childhood sweetheart, Elizabeth Eglinton. She met a tragic death soon after their marriage, and in 1330, John married Margaret De Linsey, daughter of Sir John De Linsey of Craigie from whom they had inherited the castle and estate.

Through a period of several hundred years, history gives but little of the personal lives of these ancestors, except to tell us that some were soldiers, some were merchants, some were tillers of the soil, some were government officials, some were ministers; hence after the finding of John Wallace and Margaret De Linsey-Wallace there is recorded very little except the lineage.

John and Margaret De Linsey-Wallace had a son Thomas, who was born in 1331. He married Elizabeth Stewart in 1350. His name appears officially, when he witnessed a charter by Robert Duke of Albany: this charter granted by sale, all of the land in and around Archinbothie to Thomas and his wife, Elizabeth Stewart-Wallace. It is a custom to this day that only people of very high-standing can be personally recognized by a Duke, even if only in the purchase of houses and lands.

Thomas and Elizabeth Stewart-Wallace had a son George who was born in 1352 and who in 1372 married Mary Lyons. They had a son Patrick born in 1374, and who in 1393 married Catherine Graham of Ayr. They had a son William born in 1395 and who married Janet Schaw in 1416. In his will dated 1440 he mentions the name of his wife, several daughters and his son, Hugh.

The son Hugh was born in 1419 and married Isobel Sandilland in 1438. He spent forty-nine years preaching in the parish churches of their community.

Their son John was born in 1441, and in 1460 married Catherine Cunningham.

Their son, William, was born in 1463 and in 1482 he married Catherine Crawford, a daughter of Sir Reginald Crawford of Kilbourne, Scotland, and granddaughter of the Viscount of Garnock. She died in 1522 and he died in 1532.

Their son Thomas was born in 1485 and married Elizabeth Murdock in 1504.

Their son William born in 1511, married Jean Chalmers in 1532.

Their son John born in 1529, married his cousin Margaret Hamilton in 1560.

Their son William was born in 1564 and in 1609 married Margaret Stewart, daughter and only heir of Sir Hugh Stewart, High Judge of the Courts of Sessions.

Their son William born in 1612 married Margaret Gillispie in 1638. Their son William born in 1640 was the first of the family to leave the family estates. In 1658 he married Madelene Turner, and together they went to Glasgow where he went into business for himself and became a rich merchant. History tells us that they had five sons and a daughter, Rebecca.

Three of the sons were killed in battle; the father, William, was killed by fraud of the English. Nothing is told of the daughter.

The two sons remaining were Michael and John. Michael as far as history reveals, was the first of the Wallace family to come to America. He came with a number of other immigrants to Virginia and there married Miss Elizabeth Brown, daughter of Dr. Gustavus Brown and Francis Fowke-Brown.

Our ancestor, the remaining son John, was born in Glasgow in 1659. He must have lived there for some years as in 1684 we find him to be Lord High-Chancellor of that section.

In 1679 he had married Miss Jean Kennedy, a beauty as well as an heiress, for history tells us that because of her beauty, paintings of her are found in many of the Art Galleries of Scotland to this day.

The beauty of the Wallace women can probably be traced to this grandmother of the 17th century.

John Wallace and Jean Kennedy-Wallace had a son Thomas who was born in Glasgow in 1687, and married Lillias Cuneinghame in 1720. Thomas and Lillias left Glasgow and went to the home of his forefathers at Ayr. The Wallace estates at Ayr were sold this same year 1720, and each heir after receiving his portion, began to seek new homes in other lands. Thomas and Lillias died in Ayr leaving a number of daughters and a son, William.

The son William was born at Ayr in 1744 and in 1770 married Jean Cambell who was born at Ayr in 1754. Jean Cambell-Wallace died at the birth of her son William in 1787.

The father was injured in an accident from which he died in 1789 and in those two intervening years, he had married his second wife, Ann Porterfield. His "will" showed that he had three older children: Sarah, Jean and Mary. He named as guardian of these three, Ann P. Wallace of Ayr, bearing the relation to them of stepmother. As guardians of his small son, William, he named his sister, Mary Womac, and her husband, John Womac of Dublin, Ireland.

At Dublin, the records in the office of the clerk of permits show that on May 2, 1804 a license or permit, was granted to William Wallace to marry Miss M. A. Nesbitt.

Mary Ann Nesbitt was born in Dublin, Ireland in the winter of 1787. She was the daughter of John Nesbitt and Mary Gibson, natives of Scotland. Her father as many other young men in those days, was a Scotch officer of the Civil Army. Owing to his refusal to do an unlawful piece of trickery against the poorer sections of the defensive, his commission was taken from him, and he and his wife and several children went into Ireland, settling near Dublin. On February 11, 1787, the infant daughter of John and Mary Nesbitt was christened by Reverend John Boggs. The name given was Mary Ann. Her maternal grandparents, Charles and Ellen Gibson stood sponsors. The marriage permit of this young couple was signed by four people--one of them being his guardian, John Womac.

The records also show that on May 2, 1804, John Womac signed over to William Wallace all of his inheritance.

Records at the immigration Bureau, Dublin, show that on June 9, 1804, William and Mary Wallace, husband and wife, Scotch emigrants of Dublin, Ireland with many other English and Scotch emigrants set sail from Dublin on the English steamer "Prince Edward". All persons registered as they embarked. They had to have certificates from their minister that they were good citizens and that they had conformed with the rules of the church and also that it was their intention to establish a home in America.

The records at emigrant's office at New Port News, Virginia, show that William Wallace, aged eighteen, took the oath of allegiance to the United States of America on June 27, 1804, the day of landing from the English steamship "Prince Edward".

It is said that this young couple, with many others, bought horses and took their bundles and started to the southwest.

A supposition is, that they might have been seeking their cousins in Virginia but went too far south, for we next hear of them near Knoxville, Tennessee.

Fourteen miles east of Knoxville, Tennessee, their American home was organized and established, and on this farm their nine children were born.

It is to be regretted that we have but little of the history of some of the children of this beloved couple, but owing to the fact that they settled in widely separated parts of the country and through the years have kept but little trace of one another, we shall have to devote the most of our family lineage to the three sons and their families, whose descendants have collected this information.

The father, William Wallace of Knoxville, Tennessee died of a fever at his home, fourteen miles east of Knoxville, in January, 1823, and is buried in the little cemetery near his home. His death occurred four months before the birth of his son, Robert B. Wallace.

The mother, Mary Nesbitt-Wallace and her children, after his death, continued to live at the old home for several years, and she was finally persuaded by her husband's brother, Uncle Joseph and his wife, Aunt Polly, to go with them to Randolph County, Missouri, where a number of the relatives had already gone. So she took the children and her possessions and left her Tennessee home for her new home in Missouri.

A few years later they moved to Davis County, Iowa where she finally died of Consumption and is laid to rest in Southern Davis County. We do not have the date of her death.

THE HISTORY OF THEIR CHILDREN

I. Joseph, their first child, was born about 1806. Married Polly Harlin and had two sons. James and Issac.

II. John, the second son, was born about 1808. Married Sarah Hamilton. They had one son, Hamilton.

III. Jane, the third child, was born about 1810 and married Wiley Benson. Their tragic death occurred in 1849, when during the gold rush to California, they were caught in a cloud-burst in the canons of Arizona and their bodies were never recovered.

IV. Sarah, their fourth, child was born about 1812 and married Peter Vines. They had four children.

1. Marinda, married Mr. Gragg. They had three sons: Will, John and Lee.

2. Peter Jr.

3. James

4. Sarah

V. James their fifth child, was born about 1814. Married Malinda Jones.

VI. William Donaldson, the sixth child of William Wallace and Mary Nesbitt, was born June 15, 1816 and married Martha Jane Jones on May 10, 1836, in Davis County, Iowa.

The month of May and green grass, vines and flowers in profusion would suggest a garden wedding, so while William and Martha stood on the steps of the Jones home and the relatives and other guests stood about the yard, a dark-haired youth of twenty years and an auburn-haired, blue-eyed lass of sixteen years were made husband and wife.

Martha Jane Jones was born near Middleboro, Kentucky, October 30, 1820. The daughter of Robert Jones whose ancestors were born around Kirkndbright, Scotland and Martha Nash whose ancestors were English. They were both born near Belfast, Ireland.

As we have already stated, Ireland was a mecca for immigrants from the other parts of the British Isles, because of its wonderful productive soil. The Jones families of Kirlndbright, Scotland migrated to North Ireland and settled in the Ulster section, of which Belfast is the principal city.

They were Presbyterians and the members of this church are found, mostly, in this section of Ireland.

It is interesting to note that without doubt, our Jones family is related to John Paul Jones, that great historical character, since in his family history the name "Robert Jones" occurs quite frequently and his nephews and other relatives were with the Colonists which migrated to North Ireland, around Belfast.

In our search for the Nash families, we find them to be strictly English.

The Jones and Nash families were a medium build; were a blond type; were of a retiring disposition; and in tensely religious.

Robert Jones and Martha Nash had nine children:

1. Kitty, married Frank Horn
2. William
3. Martha Jane married William Wallace
4. Mary married Issac Wallace
5. Dana married 1. William Lester
   2. David Johnson
6. Minerva married Robert Wallace
7. Susan married Greeburg Johnson
8. Elizabeth married Jack Noble
9. Malinda married Richard White

Robert Jones learned in the old country, the shoemaker's trade, and while living in Kentucky made shoes for his family, for many of his neighbors, and for the slaves on the different plantations. He, himself, was the owner of several of these black people, and when he and his family moved north, one colored Mammy insisted on going along and was very happy in being able to.

Robert Jones and Martha Nash-Jones are buried in Davis County, Iowa.

END OF THE JONES FAMILY HISTORY

William Donaldson Wallace at an early age was ordained a minister of the Presbyterian Church, at a Meeting of the Synod, in southern Iowa, and served congregations in that state, also in Missouri, and in Kansas for many years.

In those pioneer days he soon saw the need of giving physicial aid, as well as spiritual, for doctors were few and far between and he saw much suffering among the people whom he served. As a result, he took up the study of medicine in order that he might be to them a servant indeed.

His death occurred on March 3, 1871, but a few days before, he had gone out in a storm to a sick bed when he, himself, was not feeling well. Neuralgia developed which reached the brain. His resting place is in Bourbon County, Kansas.

Martha Jones-Wallace, died August 2, 1882, of Bright's disease. Her resting place is in West Benton, Kansas Cemetery.

THE HISTORY OF THEIR CHILDREN:

The first child of William Wallace and Martha Jones.

A. Julia Ann Wallace was born in Davis County, Iowa, July 27, 1837. She married William Joseph Coons on October 24, 1856 in Drakesville, Iowa. He was born in Shelby County, Indiana, December 30, 1832, the son of Silas Coons and Mahala Jane Coons, both natives of Indiana.

William Joseph Coons was a Civil War soldier, was in General Sherman's artillery, who caused the retreat of General Longworth, drove General Polk's army out of Mississippi, caputer Atlanta and went with Sherman in his famous march to the sea in which Savannah fell and when General Johnson surrendered his army to General Lee.

William Joseph Coons had a farm at Cozad, Nebraska which had the names of all his children on the Deed. It was originally all pasture land but now all built up in homes. Some of the land was deeded to the Primative Baptist Church.

The mother, Julia Ann Wallace-Coons died in Fremont County, Iowa on February 22, 1872 and is buried at Bartlett, Fremont County, Iowa.

The father, William Joseph Coons died January 19, 1916 in Cozad, Nebraska, and was laid to rest at that place.

The children of Julia Wallace and Joseph Coons are:

1. Mahala Coons married Alvin Taylor. They had ten children.

2. Martha Olive Coons born February 13, 1860 in Iowa. Her education was limited to a country school level. She was a housewife and mother. On February 16, 1882 she married John Lorenzo Hancock who was born September 21, 1859 in Drakesville, Iowa. He was a grain buyer and farmer. John and Olive Hancock came to Custer County, Nebraska in 1884 in a covered wagon. They with her father, William Joseph Coons, William's sons Frank, William, Charles and daughter Nettie, made this trip. John Hancock and Joseph Coons 'took land' near each other in Custer County. John Hancock was noted among elevator people as having an uncanny ability of being able to quite accurately grade wheat by lifting it and running it between his fingers several times. Olive made all the clothes by hand for both boys and girls of her family. Olive had a beautiful soprano voice. She died of anemia.

Martha Olive Coons and John Hancock had two children:

a. Archie Earl Hancock was born April 4, 1892, died November 1909 and was buried in Cozad, Nebraska.

b. Pearle Hancock was born October 29, 1887 in Custer County, Nebraska. Other than her professional work, her greatest accomplishment was sewing. She is a Past Matron of Eastern Star, also a 50 year member. She has served as P.T.A. President in Elementary and Junior High Schools. March 26, 1910 she married Dr. LeRoy Parks at Kearney, Nebraska. He was born August 5, 1889 at Clay City, Illinois. He was the son of M.H.Parks who was born December 6, 1861 and Leah C. Parks born March 5, 1862. M.H.Parks died August 22, 1930 and both M.H. and Leah Parks are buried at Montezuma, Kansas. His military service was with the U.S.Navy, 1944-46. He presently is employed in Regional Headquarters, Post Office Department, Wichita, Kansas. (1961) Both Pearle and her husband LeRoy are graduated from the parent school of Chiropractic at Davenport, Iowa. Both have served as officers in the Nebraska Chiropractic Association. During the war Pearle was an inspector on a bomb line for the Army.

Pearle Hancock and LeRoy Parks had two sons:

(1) The twin of Charles Rex died at birth June 3, 1914 at Tecumseh, Nebraska.

(2) Charles Rex Parks was born June 3, 1941 at Tecumseh, Nebraska. He married Merle Davis June 23, 1937 at Omaha, Hebraska. She was born June 13, 1913 and the daughter of J.T. Davis and Julia Seiler-Davis. Merle's parents are buried at Grand Island, Nebraska.

Charles Rex Parks and Merle Davis-Parks had two children:

(a) Lee Richard Parks was born December 7, 1939 at Grand Island, Nebraska. He has a real interest in writing and when he graduated from Benson High School in Omaha he received a four year scholarship. He received a $300.00 award for some of his writings in a contest at the University of Nebraska. He is a graduate of this University.

(b) Patricia Ellen Parks was born February 11, 1943 at Grand Island, Nebraska. She is a musician. She has received a one year scholarship from the College of Emporia, Kansas.

3. Frank Coons never married. He had a tonsil operation at the age of 7 and deafness followed that operation.

4. William Wallace Coons was born February 12, 1864 in Davis County, Iowa. In 1884 he came to Nebraska in a covered wagon. He was a farmer. On March 27, 1895 he married Ethel May Albright at Broken Bow, Nebraska. She was born June 17, 1874 in Wisconsin. She was an American, had Common School education and was a housewife. William Wallace Coons died February 11, 1933 at Calloway, N ebraska of heart trouble. He was buried at Stop Table, Calloway, Nebraska. Ethel May coons died August 1935 at Cozad, Nebraska. She was buried at Stop Table, Calloway, Nebraska.

William Wallace Coons and Ethel May Albright had three children:

a. Layton Coons buried in Custer County, Nebraska.

b. Gladys Coons-Taylor buried in Custer County, Nebraska.

c. Joseph Wayne Coons born May 23, 1903 at Calloway, Custer County, Nebraska. He married Laceil Phillips March 7, 1937 at Lexington, Nebraska. Laceil was born January 22, 1917, Dawson County, Nebraska. She is the daughter of Anthony Phillips who was born February 22, 1875 and Fannie Phillips born January 16, 1888. Her parents were married June 5, 1907 at Lexington, Nebraska. Wayne is a farmer, raises corn, wheat and cattle.

Joseph Wayne Coons and Laceil Phillips had two children:

(1) Barbara Ann Coons born August 3, 1938 at Lexington, Nebraska. She Married Eugene Clair Wheeler February 28, 1960 at Lexington, Nebraska. Eugene's parents were LeRoy and Elsie Wheeler.

Barbara Ann Coons and Eugene Clair Wheeler had a child:

(a) Tepricia Lynn Wheeler born January 5, 1960 at Juslesburg, Colo.

(2) Patricia Jane Coons was born September 23, 1940, Community hospital, Lexington, Nebraska. She married James Lee Bean February 28, 1960 at Lexington, Nebraska. He was born March 24, 1940 and was the son of Walter F. Bean who was born May 24, 1913 at Broken Bow, Nebraska. His mother was Pearl K. Bean born December 18, 1917. Walter and Pearl Bean were married August 18, 1937 at Broken Bow, Nebraska.

5. Nettie Ellen Coons was born September 24, 1868 at Bartlett, Iowa. On March 7, 1889 she married William Wallace Tobey who was born October 14, 1861 in DeKalb County, Illinois. He was a farmer. b. Virgil Ezra Fisher born 1894 at Benton, Kansas. He was a farmer. He was English and Scotch. He married Bernice Isabel Dwyer. She was born at Severy, Kansas. She was a housewife and saleslady in a Dept. store. My father lived west of Benton and courted my mother in Towanda, Kansas community by horse and buggy (I still have the buggy). He was a hard working farmer, working so hard that he was run down to the extent he was an easy victim for the flu epidemic. He was a devout Christian and well respected individual. My mother was the second daughter in a family of eleven who were named according to the alphabet. Her father was a stone mason (many of his works still stand in the Butler and Greenwood Counties, Kansas.)

(1) Virgil Ezra Fisher and Bernice Dwyer had a son Virgil Ernest Fisher born February 17, 1918.

After father's death Mother married again to C.E.Gregory who has been a fine step-father to me. I went through high school in Towanda, spending summer vacations with my paternal grandparents near Benton, Kansas, Ernest and Hattie Fisher. After leaving school, I went to Eldorado and worked on a ranch as a 'cow-boy' for mother's cousin Ray Dwyre. After about four years I went to Wichita and helped my step-father build houses awhile and then got into Aviation which has been my accupation since 1940. I am a licensed airplane mechanic and pilot and for a time was a Federal Aviation Inspector. I worked for Beechcraft on two airplanes which set world records for long distance flights. Beech Bonanzo--BillAdom Honolulu to Teterborough, N.Y. and Pat Boling--Manila to Pendleton, Oregon. I was severely injured in a crash of an experimental plane while working for Beechcraft as a flight test observer.

My wife, Elnor Lee McKinney was born February 15, 1922 at Towanda, Kansas. She was the daughter of Roy and Hazel McKinney. Her home was in Butler County until after our marriage February 18, 1940 at Wichita, Kansas. All our three sons were born in Wichita. The oldest was delivered by the same doctor (Dr. R.G. House) which delivered me, only to get me he had to get his model T stuck in a snow drift and borrowed a horse to get to my rescue. With my sons, there was the Wesley Hospital.

VIII. The eighth child of William Wallace and Mary Nesbitt was Matthias Turner Wallace born fourteen miles east of Knoxville, Tennessee, March 29, 1821.

About 1830, when he was nine years of age, he went with his mother, brothers, and sisters to Randolph County, Missouri. Here he went to school and here he learned to work, for as soon as he was old enough he must take his place in helping to provide for himself and his mother.

Some years later, they moved to Davis County, Iowa, where he learned the brick mason trade. Many houses and buildings are still standing which are partly of his handiwork.

Old Fairmount College which stood as a great watch-dog over the city of Wichita, from the Early Eighties, was perhaps the most noted of the buildings which he helped to erect,

After he passed away it seemed to us that it was a monument to his memory, until a fire destroyed it in the summer of 1930.

Matthias Turner was of a retiring disposition and very philanthropic though for his deeds of kindness desired no noterity or reward. In an early day, he deeded several acres of his home place near Benton, Kansas, to the community as a place of burial for their dead and in old West Benton Cemetery, sleep many whose memories are very dear to each and every Wallace who lives today.

On September 24, 1844, in Platte County, Missouri, he was united in marriage to Emmaranda Liggett, whose parents were of English descent. She was born in Illinois. We do not have the date of her birth or the history of her parents. They had six children.

A. James S. Wallace was born in Platte County, Missouri, September 2, 1845. He never married. His death occurred on January 7, 1920. His grave is at Mangram, Oklahoma.

B. The second child of Matthias Turner Wallace and Emmaranda Liggett was Nancy Isabell Wallace. She was born July 12, 1847, at Ridgeley, Platte County, Missouri. She married Edward Eben Armstrong April 6, 1873 at Wichita, Kansas.

Edward Eben Armstrong was born near Cincinnati, Ohio, June 5, 1848, the son of Bradford Carol Armstrong who was born in Plainville, Hamilton County, Ohio, March 22, 1821, and Cathrine Parker, who was also born in Ohio. They were both of Scotch-Irish descent.

Bradford Carroll Armstrong was the son of Nathaniel Armstrong, who deeded a portion of his land as a building site for a church and also ground for a cemetery. He donated all material, which was native lumber and home-made brick, and the money necessary for the construction of the church, located on Indian Hill, near Plainville, Ohio.

This church was erected in 1831, and was used for church services until 1960, at which time a new and larger Armstrong chapel was built across the street. The old chapel will be maintained and used for such activities as weddings, etc. The old Armstrong family Bible will remain in the old chapel. The donor, Nathaniel Armstrong, and his wife, and many other Amrstrong relatives, including Edward Armstrong's mother, Cathrine Armstrong, who died when Edward was 5 months old--also his brother, John Oscar, who died at the age of 5 years, are buried in the cemetery.

Bradford Armstrong remarried later moving to Benton, Kansas, where he died and is buried in Enterprise Cemetery near Benton.

Edward Eben Armstrong was one of the oldest settlers of this community, having come from Ohio to Wamego, Kansas, February 10, 1870. He came from Wamego to Wichita with Charles Allen, a brother of Joseph Allen, the first druggist of Wichita. They came April 3, 1870. After staying a few days at the Lewellen Hotel, located at what is now 10th and Waco. He homesteaded the N. W. 1/4, Sec. 1, Twp.26, R.1 E. in Sedgwick County.

In the spring of 1870 Edward was employed on a farm owned by E.P. Waterman. This farm is now covered with business buildings of downtown Wichita, Kansas. In the fall of 1870 he was employed by N.A. English to operate the first ferry boat across the Arkansas River at Douglas Avenue, where the Broadview Hotel now stands. He then worked at various jobs until he was married in 1873 and went to housekeeping in the first log cabin built in the city of Wichita and located on Indiana, south of Central Ave. and owned by the original Buffalo Bill, Col. Wm. Mathewson.

After his marriage he sold his homestead and moved to the homestead which Nancy had pre-empted near Benton, Kansas in order to be near her father, M. T. Wallace, who had homesteaded in the same section. On this homestead all of their nine children were born except Elma (who was born in Wichita). They endured many hardships as other Kansas pioneers, including the grasshopper year of 1874.

For several winters Edward worked in Wichita to provide food and clothing for his family who remained on the homestead. He left home on Sunday pm., walked 15 miles across the prairie, worked all week and walked the 15 miles home on Saturday night, carrying the weekly supplies for his family. They sold the homestead about 1896 and purchased a farm 2½ miles south, known as the Rector farm. He remained on this farm until 1906, then moved to Wichita, where he died Jan. 13, 1928, and is buried in Old Mission Cemetery, Wichita, Kansas, 1½ miles from his original homestead.

Nancy Wallace Armstrong died August 16, 1929 and is also buried in Old Mission Cemetery.

To this union 9 children were born:

1. The first child of Nancy and Edward Armstrong, Cora Ellen, was born Feb. 11, 1874, at Benton, Kansas. She was educated in Public school at Benton, Kansas and Wichita, Kansas. She took a business course from a private instructor in Wichita, and was employed in the Street and Sewer Department of the City of Wichita for more than 36 years, from March 4, 1908 and retired July 1, 1944. During this period the city was under the Council form of government, the Commission form and later the Manager form. She has watched the city grow from approximately 50,000 inhabitants to 242,000 at the present time. (1960)

Cora married Oscar Offerle, July 7, 1928 at Wichita, Kansas. Oscar was born August 13, 1864 in Geneseo, Ill., the son of Lawrence O. Offerle and Mary Ursuela Ott, who was a distant relative of Martin Van Buren. They still have in their family a Bible which is over 300 years old and has been handed down from Martin Van Buren. It is now in the possession of Harry Offerle, a nephew of Oscar's.

Oscar's father, Lawrence O. Offerle, was born in Alsace, France, May 28, 1832.

He was of French descent. His mother, Mary Ursuela Ott Offerle was born Jan. 20, 1833 in Warren, Pennsylvania. They were married May 3, 1852. They moved from Warren Pennsylvania to Geneseo, Illinois in 1860 and from there to Offerle, Kansas in April 1882. When the Santa Fe Railroad was built across Kansas, Lawrence Offerle plotted a town named for him--Offerle, Kansas.

Mary Ursuela Offerle died July 16, 1895. Lawrence Offerle died April 14, 1906. Both are buried at Offerle, Kansas.

After coming to Wichita from Offerle, Kansas, Oscar Offerle operated a grocery store, later was employed at the Postoffice for 17 years. Oscar died December 24, 1955 and is buried in Old Mission Cemetery, Wichita, Kansas.

2. The second child of Nancy and Edward Armstrong, Daisy May, was born August 22, 1875, near Benton, Kansas. She was educated in public school at Benton, Kansas and Cincinnati, Ohio. She held a life certificate and taught in grade and high schools for 19 years. She married Taylor Tunis Feb. 10, 1897 at her parents home near Benton, Kansas. Taylor was born April 20, 1870. He was the son of William Tunis (who was born in Ohio) and Barbara Ruckle (who was born in Illinois), March 5, 1840 and was of German-Irish descent. They were married in Illinois in 1856. William Tunis died June 29, 1919 and Barbara Ruckle Tunis died March 11, 1922. Both are buried in the mausoleum in Maple Grove Cemetery at Wichita, Kansas. Taylor Tunis died Jan. 26, 1923 and was laid to rest in mausoleum in Maple Grove Cemetery. Daisy and Taylor Tunis had no children.

On October 28, 1930 Daisy married Glenn Diemart of Wrangel, Alaska. He was the son of Albert Diemart and Julia Mosier Diemart. Both of Glenn's parents are buried in Towanda, Kansas Cemetery. Daisy and Glenn lived in Alaska for a number of years where Glenn operated a dairy. They later returned to the United States and lived in Towanda, Kansas where Daisy died Jan. 19, 1937 and was laid to rest beside her first husband in the mausoleum in Maple Grove Cemetery, Wichita, Ks. Glenn Diemart died Dec. 22, 1958 and is buried in Towanda, Kansas Cemetery.

3. The third child of Nancy and Edward Armstrong, Elma Emmaranda, was born in Wichita, Kansas, March 25, 1887. She was married to Francis Marion (Doc) Pitcher Oct. 23, 1907. Doc. was the son of John Felix Pitcher, a native of Missouri, and Rhoda Ann Barrington, a native of Wisconsin. Doc's father and mother are buried in a family cemetery on a farm known as the Frank Redford farm, 10 miles north of Clinton, Missouri. (Doc and Elma had no record of date of death.)

Elma Armstrong and Francis Marion Pitcher had 4 children:

a. Their first child, Viva Marie, was born near Benton, Kansas, April 12, 1909. She was married to James Corneilous (Neil) Wolf, Nov. 28, 1927, at Santa Fe, New Mexico. While in basic enlisted in the regular army for what was known as the duration, or 18 months. After basic was shipped to Scott Field at Belleville, Illinois for training in radio mechanics. After completing school was sent to Langley Field, Virginia for advanced training, then was sent to Fairfield Susan, Army Air Base California, which was port of embarcation. From there boarded the plane for overseas and a 12 hr. flight to Hickam field, Hawaii. Spent 3 days in Honolulu, then headed for Clark Field, Manila, Philippine Islands. The first stop for fuel was a spot of sand just big enough for a landing strip, Johnson Island. From there to Kwajalein for refueling, then headed for Guam. About 50 miles out of Guam, developed engine trouble. Called air sea rescue, feathered the prop, limped on to Guam, lost altitude from over 8,000 to less than 500 ft. Were at Guam three days being repaired, then on to Clark Field. Was interviewed for detached service as were all assigned to the A.A.C.S. a communications outfit, which took care of the Air Force communications, including Control Towers, Ground Control Approach (G.C.A.) which at that time was something new) Direction Finding, Cryptography (code), Radio Teletype, and other types of communications. Was sent to Detachment 47 A.A.C.S. on Okinawa. Was there for 11 months and one typhoon. On the way up stopped at a place called Looag which is on the northern tip of Luzon Island to drop off supplies to the five or six men that were stationed there. It was just a strip hacked out of the jungle.

Detachment 47 was located near Yontan Air Strip. It contained about 60 men counting enlisted men, civilians and officers. Located on the northwest corner of the island, it was at that time the main communications station for the Air Force in the Pacific, being in constant contact with all the main points. From Okinawa flew back to Clark Field. After 9 days in Manila boarded the troop transport, General A.W. Brewster, for San Francisco. Eighteen days later sailed under the Golden Gate. Took a ferry to Camp Stoneman near Pittsburg, California. Was discharged a Sergeant from the U.S.A.A.F., July 17, 1947.

When James asked Martha Ann to marry him she said that she would have to keep her promise that she would never marry a man who used tobacco. One time as he rode horseback to visit her he composed this song.

1. In eighteen hundred and seventy-six,
The tenth of January;
I made up my mind to quit the weed
And threw it out on the prairie.

Chorus-
I used tobacco for thirteen years,
I'm sure it is a shame;
I never shall take another chew
Nor never shall smoke again.

2. I felt so miserable for a while
I hardly knew what to do,
My head did ache and so did my teeth,
I tell you my friends it's true.

3. I thought awhile it impossible
For me to leave it off;
But now kind friends I plainly see,
I'm sure it is easy enough.

4. And now my friends that use this weed
Come do as I have done;
Make up your mind you never will chew
Nor never will smoke again.

IX. Robert Biers Wallace, the ninth child of William Wallace and Mary Nesbitt was born May 13, 1823 near Knoxville, Tennessee, four months after the death of his father. On Thanksgiving day in 1845 he was married to Minerva C. Jones, who was born in Randolph County, Missouri, February 16, 1828. She was the daughter of Robert Jones who was born near Belfast, Ireland of Scotch parentage and Martha Nash, who was also born near Belfast, Ireland of English parentage.

After the marriage of Robert and Minerva, they went to Davis County, Iowa, and lived there until 1852 when they moved to Taylor County, Iowa. There they lived on a farm until 1873 when they moved to Bedford, Iowa, where Robert Wallace engaged in the brickmaking business and made a large percent of the brick that was used in the business district of Bedford, Iowa.

In 1880 the urge of a newer country again became so strong that they decided to move to Kansas and located at Little River, Rice County.

They built the first house in the town which in 1935 had about five thousand inhabitants. The Wallace family lived here just one year and again went farther west to Canon City, Colorado, where Robert Wallace again entered the brick making business. They remained at Canon City as long as they lived with the exception of a short time spent in the Cripple Creek Mining Camp.

Robert Wallace had great physical strength. This is proven by the fact that he fired the furnace at the South Canon City School house the winter he was ninety years old.

Robert and Minerva Wallace were converted in their youth and joined the Cumberland Presbyterian Church, but after they moved to Taylor County, Iowa, there being no Presbyterian Church they joined by letter the Methodist Church and remained members of this church until their death.

Their children pay to them this most wonderful tribute--"They never accumulated much of this world's goods but they laid up treasures where moth and rust do not corrupt and where thieves do not break through and steal. After living long and useful lives, they hear the "well done thou good and faithful servants. Enter thou into the joys of thy Lord."

To the union of Robert B. Wallace and Minerva C. Jones were born six children: First child, William H. was born in Davis County, Iowa, in 1847. Died in infancy.
